三、职场辩论（Debate）

III. Workplace Debate · 5 minutes

Background

Live-streaming e-commerce is becoming increasingly popular in Hainan. Some vocational students use live-streaming platforms to promote local products such as mangoes, coconuts, and coffee. Some people believe vocational colleges should place greater emphasis on developing students' digital marketing skills. Others argue that students should focus more on developing practical skills related to their majors.

Question

When training vocational students in Hainan, should colleges give greater priority to digital marketing skills than to major-specific professional skills?

For

Vocational colleges in Hainan should give greater priority to developing students' digital marketing skills than to major-specific professional skills.

Against

Vocational colleges in Hainan should give greater priority to developing students' major-specific professional skills than to digital marketing skills.

Note: The debate concerns educational priorities when curriculum time and resources are limited. It does not mean that one type of skill should completely replace the other.
